ONE METHOD. . .

One way to penetrate solid rock or solid bone is to batter a crack --that's all-- a mere crack through it.

And assuming oxygen and water are available, plant in that crack a seed. And let it follow the course of least resistance in that solid rock or bone--nature's way-- and it will grow through the crack and will reach the other side.

And consider that seed an idea. Plant that idea in the crack and watch it grow on both sides of the obstruction. And that growth widens the fissure until things give. . . .on both sides.

Council Accepts Gas Clause

HEARNE

The Hearne City Council accepted a proposed rate adjustment clause presented by Lone Star Gas Company. The flexible clause, already in effect in many cities, allows the gas company to pass on to consumers additional charges for gas as they are received by the company. A representative of the gas company told the council the clause was necessary because of a critical shortage of natural gas that was causing the company to increase their efforts in seeking new sources.

Kubiak Says School Finance Still Problem

Rep. Dan Kubiak issued a statement this week following the Supreme Court ruling Wednesday that there is no constitutional right to education, and thus no constitutional remedy for disparities between rich and poor school districts.

The landmark 5 to 4 decision left intact the local property tax system that plays a large part in financing school systems in all states except Hawaii.

The court reversed a three-judge federal panel that held the Texas school financing system violated constitutional guarantees of equal protection.

Rep. Kubiak said, "The U. S. Supreme Court ruling in the Rodriquez case takes the Legislature out of the pressure cooker but it does not put the question of public school finance on the back burner."

He added that there are inequities in the public school systems and it should not have taken a court suit to prove that. "The quest for both excellence and equality in public education must remain among the highest priorities of the 63rd Legislature regardless of the court's ruling."

Kubiak said he, as chairman of the House Education Committee, has scheduled hearings for Wednesday, April 4 at 6 p.m. on the House floor on four bills dealing with problems of public school finance. The bills were proposed by the State Board of Education and the Texas State Teachers Association in light of earlier court rulings in the Rodriquez case.

"From these bills I hope to see the Legislature adopt steps taking us closer to true equality of education through a system of fair, efficient state and local financing -- without the cudgel of the United States Supreme Court over our heads," he said.

Yoe Record Climbs To 5—0

Cameron climbed to a 5-0 record Tuesday after defeating Brenham 3-2.

John Barron was winning pitcher. He managed to pitch seven innings and allowed only 3 hits.

Cameron scored in the second inning on a single by Barron and a single by Ricky Sapp. In the 4th inning, Gene Kopriva hit a solo homer that cleared the centerfield fence, reaching the 350 ft. mark.

In the fifth inning Gary Thweatt scored from 3rd base after Pat Sheguit hit a single and the pitcher threw the ball away at first.

Brenham scored two runs in the 6th inning when losing pitcher Dave Wellman homered with one on.

P&W Sets Annual Public Hearing

Texas hunters and fishermen have approximately one billion dollars invested in their equipment, and soon they will have the opportunity to put their voices where their money is.

The opportunity will come when Texas Parks & Wildlife Department officials hold public hearings in counties across the state concerning changes in laws affecting fish, game animals and fur bearing animals.

Milam County hunters and fishermen can attend the public hearing to be held Tuesday at the courthouse in Cameron. Game Warden Dale Moore will help conduct the meeting.

Clayton Garrison, executive director for the department, said the hearings are the first step toward setting the coming hunting and fishing regulations. The proposals will be set forth at the hearings, and citizen comments will be invited.

Detailed reports of the hearings will be submitted to the Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission. The reports will be used by the commissioners when they are considering changes in game and fish regulations.

Garrison said department officials are hoping for a good turn-out at the public hearings. "Citizen participation at these hearings is absolutely essential if we are to get a full picture of many variables affecting fish and wildlife programs," he said. "We sincerely urge anyone interested in our fish and wildlife resources to attend these local hearings."

Scout District Seeking New Troop Sponsors

Ken Smith of Rockdale, general superintendent of Industrial Generating Co., has been named chairman of the Tejas Boy Scout District's program -- called Together '73 -- to produce new sponsors of packs, troops and posts.

The district, encompassing two and one-half counties, presently has 20 sponsoring institutions for about 40 Scouting units and upwards of 600 boys.

Smith said he is making contact with 19 prospective sponsoring organizations in Rockdale, Cameron, Rosebud, Lott, Milano, Thorndale, Buckholts, Westphalia, and Franklin. The prospect list includes service clubs, school districts, companies, businesses, churches and veterans groups.

"The rewards of Scouting are many and lasting," Smith said, "and the Together '73 program will, hopefully, communicate these merits. We are simply trying to secure more sponsors to create more units, which means more boys in Scouting."

He said his committee will host a get-acquainted dinner for prospective new sponsoring institutions in the next several weeks, and the mechanics of the program will be communicated then. Carroll Glaser, a Rockdale attorney, is working on arrangements for the kickoff dinner.

Whale Oil To Lasers...

TSTI in Waco has introduced a laser-electro optic sequence, two years of technical training which will ultimately meet needs for 100,000 such technicians by 1980.

If you wonder "where it's at," that's where.

Lasers, computers, technology at farm, city and industry level is the way it is.

Communications is almost instantaneous and highly technical. No place is beyond the reach of technology. Even the earth's remoteness is under surveillance of satellite.

Technology can work for people or against. They can fear it because they don't understand or they can understand and put it to use amidst the vast numbers game which people have become.

It is certain we are entering the nuclear age at peace, accompanying technology with inherent new problems and solutions to older problems.

Waco's TSTI is in tune with the enormous developments in industry. And this institution's work can serve those who learn with good jobs, society with vital contributions. But for those who see this only as a hobgoblin, it will only deepen antagonisms against viable change, the same resentment whale oilers would have held for Edison's electric light.

Unitl somebody in a laboratory found whale oil was a good perfume base. And they could see better to produce the stuff when the lights went on.

Really Is Much...

Rain we didn't need is the rain we got at the weekend.

Record or near-record rainfall of January and February is continuing into the first month of spring and the lion has a wet tail.

Tornadoes or tornado-like winds have pummeled towns around the Milam area, but have yet to touch down here.

Agri-business people are moaning, but prices across the board have improved considerably in all the farm and livestock elements, some to record proportions. Not all by any means of this gets to our rainsoaked farmers.

It either rains too little or too much. But, at present, it really is much.

Fierce Controversy Rages Over British Foxhunting

By Scott Thornton

LONDON

The foxhunters' cries of "tally ho" are resounding stronger than ever through Britain's hills and dales, despite fierce controversy over whether the nation's most talked-about princess should take part.

Princess Anne, 22-year old only daughter of Queen Elizabeth, gallops into trouble every time she chases the foxes, even although hunting them with specially bred hounds has been a sport in Britain for more than 300 years.

Debates have broken out in newspapers, on radio and television, and in Parliament over the princess' regular outings. Opponents of "Blood Sports" claim she has broken an unwritten decree that members of the royal family should not hunt wild animals.

Her hunting has received even more publicity because she is frequently joined in the chase by her boyfriend Army Lt. Mark Phillips. Foxhunting has been the background against which observers have followed the couple's romance and speculated over an engagement.

Phillips, a handsome 24-year-old farmer's son, is also a keen foxhunter. He was recently sent to West Germany with his regiment but still returns to England to follow the sport.

Like the princess, he is a top-class horse rider-he was a member of the British equestrian team that won a gold medal at the Munich Olympics, and she was European equestrian champion in 1971.

According to foxhuntings administrative body,the British Field Sports Association (B.F.S.A.) the sport is booming. About a quarter of a million people follow the 15,000 foxes killed by hound packs each year.

The hunting image, however, is changing. Officials say the days are over when only the landed nobility hunted, wearing the traditional dress of pink coats, white breeches, black boots and black moleskin cap.

"Times are different now and the sport is becoming very broadly based," said [illegible] F.S.A.'s publicity officer Raymond Brooks-Ward. "The old style of dress is still popular but now almost anything goes."

Almost 200 hunts and 440 packs of hounds now seek out the fox from its lairs all over Britain-more than in the previous heyday of hunting at the beginning of this century.

Most of the 250,000 participants are members of hunt suporters clubs. They follow the fox from the comparative safety of car, bus, bicycle or foot rather than ride horses cross-country at full tilt.

"It is nonsense to talk about foxhunting still being the gentry's hobby," said Brooks-Ward, also a well-known television show jumping commentator. "We have members who are dustmen (trash collectors), drivers, engineers; practically everything. About a third of the hunts are run by farmers."

According to Brooks-Ward, the hounds kill on the average once every two outings. Most packs go out twice a week.

No parliamentary bill to outlaw foxhunting has ever passed the preliminary stage, but the main anti-hunting group, the League Against Cruel Sports, says Princess Anne's involvement has improved the possibility of government legislation.

"Her actions have focussed public attention on the horrors of foxhunting," said Raymond Rowley, chairman of the 15,000 member league.

Ruling Eases School Issue

By Bill Boykin

A widely-publicized ruling of the U. S. Supreme Court relaxed pressure on the Texas Legislature to overhaul school finance laws and the property tax system this year.

Predictions are the major revisions will be undertaken in special session -- if they are undertaken at all before the 1975 regular legislative meeting.

The High Court, reversing a San Antonio three-judge federal court ruling of December, 1971, upheld property tax financing of local schools and concluded education is not a right assured by the Constitution. The lower court had invalidated the Texas system of financing schools on the grounds it varied quality of education from district to district rather than fixing it on the basis of state wealth.

Gov. Dolph Briscoe and Atty. Gen. John Hill emphasized that inequities must still be abolished in public school finance. House Speaker Price Daniel Jr. and others agreed the heat on the Legislature to "act now" has been turned down several degrees.

Bills are pending in both Houses backed by Texas Board of Education and Texas State Teachers Association to revamp finance formulas.

The bills are slated for House Education Committee hearing April 4 at 6 p.m.

Under the Board of Education bill, the state would assume virtually all basic education program cost over a five-year period.

TSTA's proposal calls for local districts to pay 30 per cent (instead of the present 20 per cent) of program costs and would require the local school districts to meet state standards for assessing property and setting tax rates.

With the heat off, legislators aren't expected to rush into anything so far-reaching and controversial as school finance.

ALTERED PRESS BILLS

Weakened versions of open meetings and newsmen's privilege (called the "free flow of information bill") measures moved forward last week.

HB 3 -- the open meetings bill -- advanced to the Senate calendar with Jurisprudence Committee approval in a form criticized by the Texas Joint Media Committee and Common Cause.

Amendments to the measure are being prepared to tighten the sections on real estate transactions and attorney - public body meetings. These amendments should make the bill more acceptable to the Senate, media groups, House sponsors and other supporters of public access to information.

The "free flow of information" bill, HB 10, to protect sources of information from forced disclosure was due for Jurisprudence Committee consideration after winning sub-committee approval.

Critics noted that an amendment to the open meetings bill permitting close deliberations on "negotiated contracts" and real estate sales covers a lot of territory never contemplated in the original House bill.

The shield law as it cleared sub-committee on a 4-0 vote would permit the State Supreme Court to order source and information disclosure if it can be obtained by no other means and if witholding it would cause or threaten "substantial cause or injury, endanger public health and welfare or cause substantial injustice."

Spokesmen for the Texas Joint Media Committee said this was a "qualified" privilege, but better than the present common law which gives no privilege at all.

REFORM BILL KILLED

Senators crushed one of House Speaker Daniel's top reform measures -- to limit powers of spending and taxing conference committees by statute -- on a 10-21 vote.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and ranking senate members maintained the conference limitation is best handled by legislative rules, and senators approved joint rules containing the recommended controls.

However, Daniel claimed failure of the bill (HB 5) "Dealt pocketbooks of the people a stunning blow." He said millions of dollars are written into appropriations bills at every session not approved in original House and Senate budget measures.

Senators opposing the bill argued it would open the door to a myriad of nuisance lawsuits challenging tax and budget bills.

ACCIDENT RATE UP

The Department of Public Safety reported traffic accidents last year rose to 432,998, a 10 per cent increase over 1971.

A record 3,688 died in Texas street and highway accidents. Another 128,158 were injured.

Scavengers Aid Rubbish Pickup

By Bernd Debusmann

BONN

Every spring, tens of thousands of West Germans go out--looting other peoples' rubbish.

Curiously enough in a country as prosperous as West Germany -- whose citizens are normally as status-conscious as the next west European, if not more so --the practice is considered perfectly respectable.

The scavenging instincts stem from an institution officially described as "Sperrmuell," German for "bulky rubbish."

Bulky rubbish is a municipality service allowing citizens to get rid of unwanted household items too big for the waste basket.

Though the main collecting season is the spring, sperrmuell is now picked up three times a year in most parts of West Germany.

Following local newspaper announcements on the time and areas to be cleared, houseowners and apartment-dwellers build up vast piles of rubbish -- containing everything from defunct television sets and creaky beds to baby carriages, cupboards, and armchairs on the sidewalks outside their houses.

Theoretically, these leftovers of an affluent society are picked up by city trucks during the night or early in the morning.

But little that might have any conceivable use or value is left by the time the trucks come round.

For as soon as people start building their rubbish piles, hordes of looters start crusing the streets for a preliminary survey of the garbage scene.

As soon as darkness falls, they return in vehicles ranging from Mercedes limousines to battered vans and start picking apart the rubbish piles.

Most sperrmuell aficiomdos are students and young people, many of whom furnish their flats almost entirely with reconditioned and repainted items extracted from the heaps.

But it is not unusual to see well-dressed, middle-aged people in shiny, respectable cars take part in the collection.

Junk dealers and owners of second-hand shops also take the opportunity to enlarge their stocks.

Lenin Cults Flourish Today In Soviet Union

By John Morrison

MOSCOW

When the Soviet communist party started issuing new membership cards this month, the number one card, following long - established custom, went to a man who has been dead for almost 50 years.

The party ticket No. 00000001, signed with a flourish by the present communist party leader, Leonid Brezhnev, bore the name Vladimir Ilich Ulyanov (Lenin) and recorded that he joined the party in 1893.

Such is the importance of Lenin, leader of the Bolshevik revolution, nearly half a century after he died, paralyzed by strokes, in 1924.

The revolutionary leader was a modest man and would probably be horrified at the cult which surrounds his memory in the Soviet Union today.

Izvestia brought out a special morning editon with a report and pictures of the card - issuing ceremony splashed over almost the entire front page.

There was also a short poem to mark the occasion, starting with the words "He is always among us."

Under the present collective Kremlin leadership, Lenin's memory has assumed greater importance than under Stalin and Nikita Khrushchev, both of whom had their own personality cults.

Most of Lenin's revolutionary contemporaries were destroyed and discredited by Stalin and have not been brought back into favor. Trotsky, Kamenev, Zinoviev, Rykov, Tomsky, Bukharin - all these names are still in the shadows, leaving the spotlight on Lenin as the maker of the revolution.

Center of the Lenin cult is his museum on Red Square, a solid red marble edifice with his name emblazoned over the door.

Although it is presently shut for repairs, the mausoleum is a place of pilgrimage for Soviet visitors to the capital, who continue to queue in long lines across the cobblestones to file past Lenin's embalmed and illuminated body.

Newly married couples often make the mausoleum their first stop when they leave the Palace of Weddings. The bride and groom are ushered to the front of the queue.

Stalin also lay in the mausoleum from 1953 until 1961, when he was removed at the height of Khrushchev's campaign against his memory.

Another place where Lenin's memory is kept alive is the Kremlin, where his apartment and office are open to selected groups of visitors.

A guide explains in reverent tones how modestly Lenin, has wife Nadezhda Krupskaya and his sister Mariya lived in their sparsely furnished flat, in a three-story 18th century building which housed leg ' offices before the revolution.

Krupskaya lived on there till her death in 1939, lonely and deprived by Stalin of her own political career.

In her bedroom there is a yellowing unpublished picture of Lenin shortly before his death, sitting grimly in a wheelchair with his right side paralyzed.

Just along the corridor is the long room where the council of ministers met not only in the days of Lenin, but right up to 1956.

Under Lenin's control, discipline was strict, with penalities for those who arrived late. Heavy smokers had to repair to the end of the room and puff their pipes and cigarettes into the ventilator.

Just behind the chairman's seat, through a pair of double doors, is the well-preserved inner sanctum of Lenin's office.

The room has been kept as it was when Lenin left it after his stroke in 1922. There are books, gifts, a "no smoking" sign. a battery of old-fashioned telephones and the maps on which he followed the campaigns of the civil war.

Lenin's chair is hard and uncomfortable (he chose it himself) but there are big black armchairs for his closest colleagues. Stalin and Trotsky probably sat here, but the guide doesn't mention them.

So Lenin remains ever present. Russians see his bearded face in statues, pictures, photographs, newspapers, posters and in their place of work.

And when the portraits of the 15-man politburo go up all round Moscow to mark the anniversary of the revolution each November, an outsize picture of Lenin ("Our Ilich") dwarfs them all.

Wooden Tiger Sculpted From Cedar Stump

The T. H. Wardlaws have a 60 pound wooden tiger in their living room. It is the culmination of 10 months of study and work with sculptors chiesel, knife and sandpaper for Marjorie Wardlaw, an artist with an eye for form even in unlikely looking tree stumps.

The life-like tiger was once a misformed 160 pound cedar tree stump found by the sculptor on the picturesque Wardlaw farmland at Marlow. The original tree trunk had broken off and a second, curved trunk formed at the side.

CEDAR WOOD TIGER - sculpted by artist Marjorie Wardlaw was a 10 month project of sketching, studying and finally chipping away of 100 pounds of wood from a cedar tree stump to create a life-like tiger.

"I knew from the first that it was going to be a tiger crouched ready to spring," Mrs. Wardlaw explained. But between the rough tree stump and the emerged tiger were months of study, sketches and careful cutting away of 100 pounds of hard cedar wood.

There were anxious moments when the wood would begain to crack and the artist would switch from chisel to the slower but safe sandpaper.

When concentration on the tiger became too intent the artist, a woman of many talents and unlimited energy, turned her attention to other projects such as a large organic garden, the building of an authentic looking log house for the chickens, and the naming of registered Paint Horses raised by the Wardlaws.

The completed tiger now crouches on a rock formation, made by the artist of crushed rock and cement, in a glassed in corner of the Wardlaws living room. It is surrounded by green plants and overlooks the family-room style screened porch which surrounds the living room.

Framed Built-Ins Add Spark

As children grow up, their bedrooms become more than just a place to sleep and play in. The room becomes their private part of the house, and the decor should allow them to express or expand personalities.

For a pre-schooler, a bed, small chair and toy chest are sufficient, but during the elementary grades a writing desk and well-lighted reading facilities become important.

Starting early, children collect things—rocks, shells, dolls, or stuffed animals—requiring wall-mounted shelves of western wood for proper display.

Walls Serve Well

An organized solution to children's expanding activities is a system of built-in desks, storage drawers, shelves, and bulletin boards along two adjoining walls.

Forming the framework are horizontal 4x4s of Douglas fir or western pine, attached to the wall studs with lag bolts. Vertical 4x4s between the horizontals frame a window on one wall, and a matching set on the other wall provides support for board shelves.

Along one wall, a desk top is attached to the bottom of the 4x4. In a room shared by two youngsters, desk areas can be separated by sets of drawers or cabinets.

Place For Posters

Portions of the wall above the desk and the other wall are covered with composition tack board between the 4x4s, giving ample space for posters and pictures.

The walls behind the shelves and above and below the 4x4 framing keep maintenance low when covered with lightly stained or sealed western wood board paneling.

Decorating need be modified only slightly for boys and girls. The frames can be stained for boys, painted pastel for girls. A mod window shade may suit either, or girls may prefer frilly curtains.

When the children are grown, the room converts to a study-guest room.

Frames of 4x4-inch western wood set off tack boards, shelves, windows, lending organized, custom look to teenagers' room. Trim built-in desk-storage units provide separate study areas in shared room. Board paneling finishes walls, helps subdue noise.

City Dweller Should Use Pesticides Wisely

AUSTIN

Two years of research by the Texas Department of Agriculture show that the farmer and the city dweller must continue efforts to use pesticides wisely, Commissioner John C. White has announced.

Cities make significant contributions to pesticide contamination in Texas streams and rivers, the study revealed.

"The city dweller adds his share of pesticide pollution by using too much of the chemical and by pouring the excess down drains. Just as does the farmer, the home owner also contributes o pesticide residue in waterways by the wash-off from rains and the natural leaching of chemicals in the soil," Commissioner White explained.

A report of the study, "An Evaluation of the Pesticide Residues on Silt and Sediment in Texas Waterways," has just been published and is available to the public.

Research was conducted by Brooke Tidswell III, formerly an aquatic biologist with the Texas Department of Agriculture, and W. E. McCasland, chief chemist of the Department's pesticide laboratory in Brenham.

A total of 433 samples were taken at intervals from eight major Texas rivers and three smaller streams from June 1970 to August 1972.

Over 50 percent of the samples contained one or more residues, with the heaviest concentrations in the agricultural drainage basins. However, the study revealed that large quantities of long-life pesticides have not been used extensively in the recent past.

"As of December 31, 1972 widespread DDT usage was halted in Texas. Farmers are observing the regulations established for controlled use of pesticides. In fact, the entire agricultural community is working to preserve the environment which holds its future," Commissioner White said.

Samples from five stations on the Trinity River at the Greater Fort Worth - Dallas area showed the extent of city pesticide pollution.

The samples revealed that the metropolitan sites had a 37 percent concentration of DDT while no residue was found in any sample taken on the Trinity River at Boyd, about 50 miles north of Fort Worth. The concentrations of the residues found in the Trinity for compounds other than DDT were considerably greater than any other residues throughout the state.

"We urge all users to be cautious. Material is available on the correct use of pesticides from the Department and on the product labels," Commissioner White stated. "Everyone must share the responsibility for clean waterways."

Information for the home owner on pesticides can be obtained by writing for Publication #TDA-Q-423A from the Texas Department of Agriculture, Box 12847, Austin 78711.

PLAN LANDSCAPE

In planning the landscape around your home, list family needs and study the site, advises a specialist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Consider the driveway and turnaround space, off - street parking, play space for children, an outdoor living area, a vegetable garden, privacy and windbreaks. Use landscape plants that grow naturally near or on the site and use building materials that blend well in the natural environment.

Taxpayers Ask IRS

This column of questions and answers on Federal tax matters is provided by the Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

Q - My wife and I had over $18,000 in income last year. Does this mean that we cannot take advantage of the increased deduction for child care?

A - No. You may still have a partial deduction. Your deductible child care expenses must be reduced by one-half of the amount by which your adjusted gross income exceeds $18,000 for one year. This means that you may have up to $27,600 in income before your child care deduction is phased out. For more information, see IRS Publication 503, "Child Care and Disabled Dependent Care." It's available free by contacting your local IRS office.

Q - I paid someone to prepare my return for 1972. Can I deduct his fee on my 1972 return?

A - No. Since most taxpayers are on the cash basis, practically all deductible expenses, including tax preparer fees, may be deducted only in the year they are paid. Thus, if you itemize deductions, you may deduct on your 1973 return the amount paid in 1973 to have your 1972 return prepared.

Q - I had two jobs last year, and more than the maximum amount of social security tax was withheld from my pay. Can I claim the excess?

A - Yes. If you worked for two or more employers during 1972 and more than $9,000 of your wages were subject to social security tax, you are entitled to claim the excess social security tax as a credit against your income tax. See your tax form instructions for details.

However, if you worked for only one employer during 1972, and more than $468 in social security tax was withheld, you may not claim the excess as an income tax credit. Your employer should adjust this over-collection with you.

Q - How can I tell if a contribution to a particular organization is tax deductible?

A - If you itemize deductions, you may deduct contributions to organizations operated for religious, charitable or educational purposes. Some examples are churches, community chests, nonprofit schools, hospitals, etc. The organizationitself should be able to tell you whether contributions made to it are deductible or you may call the IRS.

Q - Where can I get information on tax law changes affecting my 1972 return?

A - Internal Revenue Publication 17, "Your Federal Income Tax, 1973 Edition," describes all the tax law changes affecting your 1972 return. It may be purchased for 75 cents at IRS district offices, Government Printing Office book stores, and many post offices.

Q - I heard that there are five tests that must be met for a taxpayer to claim a person as a dependent. What are they?

A - For a person to qualify as your dependent for 1972, the following tests must be met:

1) You must furnish over half of the dependent's total support during the calendar year;

2) Unless the person is less than 19 years of age at the end of the year or a full-time student during five months of the year, you may not claim him as a dependent if his gross income is $750 or more;

3) The person must be a member of your household and live with you for the entire year or be closely related to you;

4) He must be a U. S. citizen or resident, or a resident of Canada, Mexico, American Samoa, Panama Canal Zone or the Republic of Panama for some part of the year; and

5) The person must not file a joint return unless one is not due but was filed merely to obtain a refund.

Brazos River To Have 3,000 Trout

The Brazos River immediately below Possum Kingdom Dam is scheduled for 3,000 more rainbow trout in March, according to Texas Parks and Wildlife Department officials.

Some of the trout should weigh in excess of one pound, they say.

The fish were originally slated for the river April 7, but water at the fish hatcheries where the trout are being held is getting too warm to sustain them.

Rainbows have been added to the Guadalupe River below Canyon Dam since 1966 and to the Brazos River for the past year.

Fishermen may catch the trout as soon as they are released. The limit is five per day.

Twin 200 Draws Top Driver

Gary Bettenhausen, who is at his best on a high-banked race track, looms as one of the top favorites in the National Championship segment of the Texas Twin 200's on Saturday, April 7.

Gary is expected to take to the 22-degree-banked Texas World Speedway like a duck takes to water.

Gary will be carrying on a great family racing tradition in the event. His father, Tony Bettenhausen Sr., was the National Driving Champion of the old AAA in 1951 and of USAC in 1958. He was killed at Indianapolis in 1961.

Gary's two younger brothers, Merle and Tony Lee, also have chosen auto racing as their life's work and are on their way to impressive careers.

Gary began his USAC Career in stock cars in 1963, after running go-karts for two years. Progressing rapidly, he moved up to midgets and sprint cars. He won USAC Sprint championships in 1969 and 1971 and was runnerup for the title in both 1968 and 1970.

Beginning the 1973 season, Gary had a total of three Career National Championship triumphs. He won one last season, the Trenton 200. His other victories were scored in the Phoenix 200 of 1968 and the Michigan 200 of 1970 at Michigan International Speedway, Cambridge Junction, Mich., a track similar to Texas World.

MENTAL HEALTH MATTERS

Helping Against Drug Abuse

The increase of drug abuse as a nationwide phenomenon in the late 1960's and continuing now into the 70's has brought about changes in traditional modes of religious action.

Thus, concerned with drug abuse, clergy, religious leaders, and church laymen have become initimately involved and are helping attack the problem in many ways in thousands of communities across the land.

A glance at a few highlights of religious activities in prevention and treatment of drug abuse is interesting and enlightening—and shows that a critically important part of the attack on this problem is comprised of these activities.

Innovations, such as telephone services (hotlines) which offer 24-hour help and referral, are now operating with the initiative and skill of community volunteers and are often sponsored by religious organizations.

Churches in many communities have helped in many ways.

For example, a church may lend its basement as a meeting place or free clinic.

Full treatment and prevention centers are provided by other religious organizations.

Churches or church-related organizations have provided drug abuse program aids and film libraries, group counselling for adolescents, and professional and public educational publications and materials.

Such organizations have also encouraged their individual churches to formulate plans for activities concerning drug abuse and made planning and educational materials available to them.

These activities are burgeoning all over the country; and this expansion of voluntary and religious action groups determined to do their part in drug abuse prevention and treatment is one of the most encouraging aspects of the nationwide effort to combat this grave mental health and social problem that is such a tragic affliction upon many individuals and families today.

Mariner 9 Shows Mars Shaped By Fire And Ice

Mars lives.

A satellite called Mariner 9 has painted a portrait that shows the planet internally alive, more like earth than the moon, yet different from both. Dynamic forces still shape its surface.

An extravagant variety of geological forms covers the planet: Volcanoes larger than any on earth; canyonlands that sunder the Martian crust for thousands of miles; giant dusty basins; jumbled uplifts and fractures; dry arroyos with intricate tributaries.

Since November 13, 1971, Mariner 9 has circled Mars twice each day. For almost a year, the spacecraft photomapped the planet's surface, probed its atmosphere, took its temperature, and assayed its chemistry.

TURNED INTO PICTURES

Some of the spacecraft's signals were transformed into more than 7,300 spectacular pictures, hundreds of them with resolution so fine that an object the size of a football field can be detected.

"To those who have studied the Mariner 9 photographs, the marvel is that the Martian volcanoes were not recognized in the pictures from earlier flybys," writes Kenneth F. Weaver in the February National Geographic. "Nearly half the planet is now seen to be volcanic, with extensive lava flows.

"Nineteen large volcanic features have been found. The largest of these are shield volcanoes created by repeated flows of lava of low viscosity that pile up in thin sheets, forming gently inclinded slopes."

Towering above them all is Nix Olympica which encompasses the largest known volcanic pile in the solar system. Twice as wide as the volcanic islands in the Hawaiian chain, Nix Olympica's summit, by one measurement, stands some 15 miles above the Martian plain.

Mariner 9 sprung an even bigger surprise with pictures of meandering riverbeds. "Faults do not wander over the surface in the same way these structures do," points out Bradford A. Smith, one of Mariner's scientists.

"And unlike some of the other sinous channels we see on Mars, these could not have been formed by lava, for there are no craters or vents associated with them from which lava could have flowed.

"So we are forced to the conclusion that they are exactly what they seem to be--the beds of ancient rivers through which large amounts of water once flowed."

MARS HOLDS WATER

Abundant evidence suggests that great quantities of water in some form have been introduced in past eons to the surface and into the atmosphere of Mars. But how much water still exists on the planet's surface remains a pystery.

The question of life on Mars also is unsolved. Nothing discovered by the Mariner missions excludes the possibility.

Two Viking leanders may provide a definitive answer in 1976. Once eased to the planet's surface, they will scoop up Martian soil with ten-foot retractable arms, Inside the spacecraft, miniature laboratories will analyze the samples; dish antennas will then transmit the findings back to earth.

Weekly Market Report

Livestock feed costs have risen substantially, so a drop in meat prices isn't likely in the near future.

Mrs. Gwendolyne Clyatt, consumer marketing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University, made this prediction -- adding that meat supplies don't equal the demand.

"Roasts are popular this time of year, so there's greater demand for forequarter beef cuts -- and better values on hindquarter cuts.

"Scattered specials may be found on round steak, sirloin and rib steaks, ground beef and liver.

"Pork continues in short supply with prices reflecting the shortage. Features are scattered.

"Look for a few specials on fresh pork loin cuts and liver, and on bacon, sausage and semi-boneless smoked hams.

"Although all poultry products have increased in price during recent weeks, they remain relatively good buys," Mrs. Clyatt noted.

"Pound for pound, dairy products are excellent food choices. Cottage cheese is a good choice pricewise and calorie - wise."

Grocery produce sections are showing signs of spring -- with a variety of fruits and vegetables being offered.

"Grapefruit, oranges, apples, bananas, pineapples, potatoes, carrots, turnips, cabbage, broccoli, and hard shell squash are in good supply at the most economical prices.

"Although fresh asparagus is available, price and quality vary," the specialist added.

'Living Bible' Is Bestseller

"The Living Bible," a paraphrse of the Bible in modern English, was the country's best-selling book in 1972.

It tops Publishers Weekly's non-fiction list on the basis of nearly 2 million sales through Doubleday & Company, Inc. An additional 5 million copies were sold by Tyndale House Publishers. Dr. Kenneth Taylor, who paraphrased "The Living Bible," is president of Tyndale House.

"Jonathan Livingston Seagull," best seller in the fiction category, sold approximately 2 million copies to move to the top of the best - selling fiction books after a slow start.

The two lists were just released by Publishers Weekly, the leading journal of the publishing industry. "Jonathan Livingston Seagull" is a modern parable about a seagull who aspires to greater living. It has a smattering of positive thinking, a great deal of metaphysics, and a happy ending.

"The Living Bible" has all this. And more. Publishers Weekly credits "The Living Bible" with making the list from recorded Doubleday sales of 757,216 copies to the trade during the last four months of 1972.

That says nothing of the figures for the other eight months of the year.

Publishers Weekly reminds that the Bible is considered "always the best seller" by the industry. It seldom makes the bestseller list, says the magazine, because "bookstores often neglect to report Bibles, cookbooks and other titles they consider staple stock."

Another reason, reports the magazine, is that the big sale for the Bible is spread widely through middle America rather than in the large metropolitan center stores that chiefly report to Publishers Weekly. This is particularly true of "The Living Bible."

In addition to Doubleday's sale to the trade, Tyndale House, which publishes the entire "Living Bible" has seven other editions -- including a children's New Testament (the last half of "The Living Bible") and a youth edition -- all in various bindings.

The prices range from $4.95 for paperback versions to $24.95 for elegant leather - bound editions. A green hardcover edition selling in the neighborhood of $10 has been exceptionally well-received.

The additional 5 million copies of "The Living Bible" sold by Tyndale House went to retail outlets not covered by Doubleday.

These retail outlets included variety stores like J. C. Penney's; Sears, Roebuck and Co.; Montgomery Ward; many five and ten cent stores; small Christian bookstores, and church-run bookstores.

RAISINS FIRST

Raisins make up half of all dried fruits eaten by U. S. consumers -- followed by prunes, dates and figs, says Mrs. Gwendolyne Clyatt, consumer marketing specialist, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University.

Traffic Deaths Up Over 1972

Texas traffic deaths are up 7 percent over 1972 for the nearly completed first quarter, while Central Texas area traffic deaths are approximately 70 percent under the 1972 rate for the comparable period.

At the end of the reporting period, March 16, Texas had 544 traffic deaths, as compared to 510 for the same period in 1972, according to the Texas Department of Public Safety.

The Central Texas area has had 6 traffic fatalities from 5 accidents for the same period.

The Department of Public Safety indicates that the two major bus crashes in Texas are largely responsible for the increase.

William J. McCaffrey, Project Director of the Central Texas Alcohol Safety Action Project, said the Central Texas figures are based on the average quarterly death rate in 1972. He expressed hope "that the present rate of 70 percent under 1972 deaths would continue, making the 1973 traffic death rate far under 1972."

Regional Science Fair Set At Waco

WACO

Local and national organiztions will present special awards to winners of the 1973 Central Texas Regional Science Fair March 29 and 30 in the Lloyd O. Russell Intramural Sports Building on the Baylor University campus.

The fair is conducted in association with the International Science and Engineering Fair and Texas Junior Academy of Science.

Baylor hosts the regional fair, which presents a comparative and competitive exhibition of scientific projects developed and desplayed entirely by students under the direction of their teachers and other interested individuals.

Two awards programs will highlight the fair. Special category awards will be presented after a noon luncheon honoring exhibitors on March 30 in Drawing Room of the Baylor Student Union Building. All other awards will be presented at an awards program at 5:45 p.m. that day in Waco Hall on the Baylor campus.

About 300 students will compete for more than 100 awards in categories of behavioral and social sciences, biochemistry, botany, chemistry, earth and space sciences, engineering, health, mathematics and computers, microbiology, physics and zoology.

Two senior division winners will be eligible to enter projects in the International Science Fair later this spring. Their trip will be paid for by the Central Texas Regional Science Fair. Junior division finalists will receive special awards also.

Kubiak Seeks Views In District

Rep. Dan Kubiak of Rockdale is presently distributing questionnaires throughout his three - county district in an effort to get his constituents' view on a wide range of issues.

Kubiak's questionnaire contains more than two dozen " yes or no " questions and a half-dozen "tell me what you think" items on major issues facing the Legislature this session.

"I know the questionnaire is lengthy, and it will take considerable time for everyone to answer all the questions -- but it is worth every bit of the effort if it helps bring about the kind of representation the people want," Kubiak said.

He urged residents of Falls, Milam and Williamson counties "not to stop with just the questions on the list, but to write me about all your thoughts and goals for the Legislature."
